WALKING to school in Casey will become more popular following the recent successful "Walk Safely to School Day", a national event promoting safety and health.

Casey primary schoolers and their parents and carers gave the day a big tick, despite predicted damp weather and cool temperatures.

The council's community safety chief, Brendan Fitzsimmons, said the event was a "great chance to promote the many benefits walking to school provides for children of all ages".

A number of Casey schools, such as Cranbourne West Primary, are promoting walking to school in their local communities.

He said that as the group walked into the school grounds, the children sang their new walking school bus anthem, before heading to the hall to enjoy a healthy breakfast.
